

First Minister's Golden Stool

When he goes on his regular retreat on his family estate in His West African constituency our dear leader is to be given a golden Stool to sit on.

Respect for Tradition

He is expected to be feted on arrival and treated as the supreme tribal chief in an historic ceremony with origins lost in the second dark age. Apparently the ritual used to be common place but is now relatively rare, confined to be a small group that try to keep up the traditions of the old Asante nation in West Africa.
